

U.S. Agricultural Trade

Large U.S. and foreign crops lower prices for grains, oilseeds, and cotton, and increased competition lead to sharply lower agricultural export value in 2005. Exports balance with imports for the first time since the late 1950s.

